CUBAN ELECTORAL BILL.

Convention Agrees on Method of Electing Senators.

HAVANA, Aug. 10 .- At the meeting of the Cuban constitutional convention to-day | following officers were elected for the enthe project was approved to end Article 77 of the electoral bill by Clause 72, providing that a voter in the Havana province can vote for twenty-seven senatorial electors; n Santiago and Santa Clara, for 20; in Matanzas, for 16; in Pinar del Rio, for 13, and n Puerto Principe, for 11; and also that a senatorial elector can vote for four senators, the maximum number in each prov-

The project originally provide that an elector could only vote for three out of four senators. It is cialmed that the change is prompted by the desire of a majority of the convention to have the Senate of their way of thinking, as they expect to control the election. A majority of the senatorial electors assert that the election law is not being framed upon general principles, but with a view of obtaining the triumph of one lique in the convention. A debate was also held upon the question of the election of the president by an electoral college, but

Owing to the annual business meeting at Camp Acton last night a large number of cottage owners made their appearance on the grounds for the first time this season. The cottage owners have realized that something must be done to draw the people to the park, and, owing to this, much interest was centered in the meeting. About fifty-five representatives of cottages were itants themselves it was arranged that the present when President J. W. Dashiell night a committee was appointed to prepare a list of nominees for the election last The board uses the following language: itated between the people and the tax col"The Columbia, having been in ordinary for lectors it seems that the inhabitants colunanimously, as follows: Rev. J. Simpson were elected trustees for three years. The election of officers assumed a spirited phase for a few moments. Mr. Wright took the liberty of drawing technical points the arrival of the French gunboat Alou- in parliamentary law on the president, and for a time that official was at his wits' end. The matter threatened to delay the meeting, and, as train time was drawing near, Charles Robinson moved that the secretary, acting for the fifty-five cottage holders present, cast a ballot for the candidate, and in that way expedite matters. The motion was carried and the new officials were duly The Rev. J. W. Dashiell, who has held the

the time that he has had charge of the association, but this year, it is said, younger blood must be infused into the offices, and as a result the Rev. Charles W. Tinsley, pastor of the Broadway M. E. Church, was elected to the office to succeed Mr. Dashiell. His cause for objecting so strongly is that, as he has worked so many years in helping Acton Park, he thought that some yo man would become careless in his work and shift the responsibility of the work to the shoulders of the vice president, and he now wanted, he said, to draw away from active work in the association. His contention received very little support and his election followed. The trustees, at their meeting Thursday night, voted to call in all the old bonds and sue new ones at a lower rate of interest. There is now standing against the association a bonded debt of $2,400, which is carrying 7 per cent. interest. It is now decided to issue new bonds to pay off this debt, and the new bonds to be of twenty-fivedollar denomination and to be sold to each cottage holder. The new bonds are to bear per cent. interest.

It is said that the association has been steadily losing money for several years, and for this reason more attention was being manifested in the election held last night than in any previous affair of its To-day will practically be the last day of the camp, and a large meeting has been arranged. W. H. Wheeler will conduct a sunrise prayer meeting at 6:30 o'clock. At 9 o'clock Miss Anna Downey will conduct a Pentecostal meeting, which will last for an hour. At 10 o'clock the Rev. L. E Dolph will deliver a sermon. At 2 o'clock Miss Anna Downey will conclude the series of children's meetings. While the meeting is not scheduled to close until next Thursday night, little in the way of religious exercises will be held after to-day. Many of the cottagers will begin moving
